Nixon Has Breakfast Session With Dem, GOP Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today called the Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate and House to a White House breakfast apparently intended to smooth over his troubled relations with Capitol Hill.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the purpose of the meeting in the state dining room was to discuss the future of the wage and price control program which expires April 30.

But the session also gave Nixon a chance to soothe lawmakers who were angered because he did not consult with them before launching almost two weeks of saturation bombing of Hanoi last month.

The Democratic caucuses in both houses of Congress have voted to work for legislation requiring an immediate termination of the Vietnam war. Nixon hopes to head off a showdown on such a measure.

Ziegler has said attempts to legislate an end to the war might prolong the fighting by raising doubts in the minds of Hanoi leaders about U.S. intentions.

Later in the day, Nixon was to meet with five officials of foreign governments who are in Washington to attend memorial services for former President Harry S. Truman.

The meetings with President Zalmán Shazar of Israel, Prime Minister Kim Chong-pil of Korea, Prime Minister Jack Lynch of Ireland, Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines and Vice President Yen Chia-kan of Taiwan will be Nixon's first with foreign representatives since he began and later discontinued the heavy bombing of North Vietnam.

None of the five represent nations, such as Sweden, Australia and Canada, which have been critical of recent U.S. war moves.

Nixon met for about 90 minutes Thursday with his top diplomatic and military advisors for what the White House described as a general review of the Indochina situation.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who announced the meeting, would provide no information on the substance of the discussions.

Attending the session were Secretary of State William P.

Rogers; Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird; Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff; and White House National Security Advisor Henry A. Kissinger, who resumes private peace talks with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris Monday.

Defense Secretary-designate Elliot Richardson met with Nixon and Kissinger later in the day.

Near-Record U.S. Strikes in N. Viet

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command announced today a near-record number of B52 bombers and jet fighters struck the southern panhandle of North Vietnam while military spokesmen said government soldiers drove off Communist troops who had seized a hamlet near Saigon.

The intensified air strikes south of the 20th Parallel hindering Communist military traffic heading for South Vietnam.

U.S. Navy, Marine and Air Force jets concentrated mostly on bombing North Vietnamese supply trucks, an official command said.

The command said "numerous" vehicles were destroyed.

Ten miles north of the Panhandle's major port city of Vinh, 164 miles south of Hanoi, Navy jets bombed a Com-

ATTEND BOGGS' MASS — Mrs. Hale Boggs and Mrs. Richard Nixon (R) leave St. Louis Cathedral in New Orleans escorted by Most Rev. Philip Hannan, Archbishop of New Orleans, the celebrant of the Memorial Mass for the late Rep. Hale Boggs, former House Majority Leader, missing and presumed dead since an Alaskan plane crash in Oct. Former Pres. Lyndon B. Johnson (L) and his wife, Ladybird also attended. (UPI Telephoto)

Senate Action Unlikely, Prediction by Mansfield

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, a longtime foe of the Vietnam War, believes it is unlikely the Senate will act on new proposals to end U.S. participation in the war by legislation.

The Montana senator made the prediction Thursday after a Senate Democratic caucus described as "heated" and "emotion-packed" approved 36 Nixon will be inaugurated for his second term Jan. 20.

Mansfield's Republican counterpart, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, urged Senate members several end-the-war measures to "temper our language" and already have been introduced in both houses.

Antiwar sentiment appeared strong in Congress, which convened this week, as members responded to the late end all military spending for the war while negotiations remained under way. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's negotiator, resumes secret talks in Paris Monday.

But public pressure on Congress appeared at its highest level in many months.

Demonstrations have resumed in Washington. While Democratic senators debated Thursday, about 400 antiwar demonstrators gathered near the Capitol to hear antiwar speeches and the songs of Joan Baez, who returned recently from a visit to Hanoi. There were a dozen counter-protesters, led by the Rev. Carl McIntire, who held up signs saying "peace through victory" and "don't sell out our allies."

1972 Death Toll Lowest in 8 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon lists 299 Americans killed in action in the Vietnam war last year, fewer than fell in a single week back in 1968 when U.S. troops were in the thick of the ground war.

The 1972 toll was the lowest in eight years, since before the United States began bombing North Vietnam in 1965 and then sent its own infantry and other forces into the fighting on a major scale.

A Pentagon report shows 45,928 Americans killed in Southeast Asia action between Jan. 1, 1961, and Dec. 30, 1972.

The U.S. casualties started out on a very small scale in 1961 and 1962 and, as might be expected, vaulted as U.S. involvement in South Vietnam progressed from advising Saigon's forces to assuming the main burden of the ground fighting.

U.S. killed-in-action totaled 42 in 1961 and 1962 together, rising to 78 in 1963, 147 in 1964, to 1,369 in 1965, 5,003 in 1966, to 9,378 in 1967 and a peak of 14,592 in 1968, the year of the great Tet offensive.

In many weeks during 1968 U.S. battle deaths totaled in the 300, 400 and even 500-plus range. The worst week saw 562 American battle deaths during the seven days ended May 11, 1968.

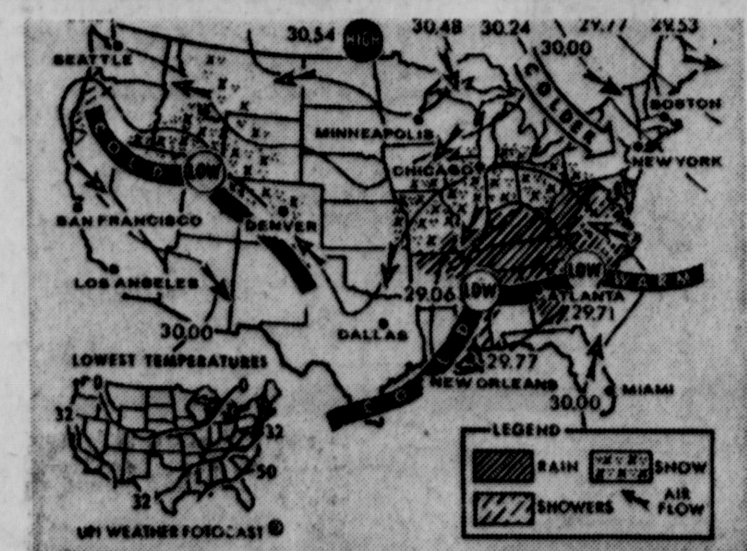

The killed-in-action totals started downward in 1969, the year President Nixon began the gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam. The U.S. combat death count in 1969 was 9,414. It was more than halved in 1970, to 4,221, and dropped sharply again in 1971 to 1,380.

While the U.S. battle toll came to 299 in 1972, the South Vietnamese recorded 37,566 combat deaths, and allied forces, principally South Koreans, suffered 442.

The Pentagon summary showed that 131,675 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers were slain in South Vietnam in 1972. However, statistics on enemy casualties are gathered principally from South Vietnamese sources and are regarded with some reservation by many U.S. officers.

According to the Pentagon summary, South Vietnamese regular forces lost 180,676 men over the past 12 years. Allied countries other than the United States which sent troops to help South Vietnam lost 5,221 men.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong were said to have suffered 921,350 combat deaths in the past 12 years.

Gardiner Board Opposes Reservoirs

GARDINER said Gardiner was opposed to the building of the reservoirs unless the dams had a permanent outflow built into them guaranteeing the average daily flow of the river be maintained. Majestic said if this safeguard was maintained, the town would be in favor of the reservoirs because of the flood control benefits they would bring. Thursday night's meeting was also the organizational meeting for the 1973 town board, with town appointments made and salaries set. The largest discussion was held on the salaries for the town's assessors. The assessors' present salaries are $2,200 for the chairman of the board of assessors, and $1,500 for the other two assessors. Majestic was in favor of keeping the salaries at those levels rather than increasing them to the levels in the 1973 budget. He said the salaries could be raised any time during the year if the board felt it was warranted. Majestic based this on a board resolution of some months ago that town board members, who are elected, would not seek a salary in-kind except in the years in which they are running for office. The assessors had to wait until the end of 1972 to get their full salary. The salaries in the 1973 budget are $2,700 for the chief assessor, and $1,800 for the other two. Justice Samuel Stokes and Alex Rooney both observed that the workload on the assessors had increased, and chief assessor Michael Gillen said he expected it to get even heavier in 1973. It was finally agreed to retain the 1972 salary level until a meeting between the assessors and the board is held, either Jan. 25 or 31, with any adjustments to be made after the meeting. The Old Dutch Independent, Freeman was named an official newspaper for emergency situations. Among the appointments made by the board were: Tom Roberts and Milton Decker, constables; Anthony Lanzarone, dog warden; Vivian Beatty and

Rhinebeck Plant Opens

RHINEBECK which effluent flows through two leach fields, each of which plant was installed by the Lafko Construction Company of Wappingers Falls. It is anticipated that landscaping and resurfacing for a parking lot will be completed this Spring. The project was started in the early July, 1972 and was expected to be completed in August. Additional equipment requirements and electrical expansion caused the opening to be delayed until the holiday season. "An appropriate Christmas greeting to all at Astor and in the village," said Sister Mary George, Home administrator. According to Leslie Beach, head of the maintenance department at the Astor Home, the new plant is capable of processing up to 9,000 gallons of sewage per day and was built to the specifications required by both the Dutchess County Health Department and those of the Building Commission of the New York Diocese. The Lafko Company also installed the sewerage treatment plant for the Village of Tivoli, which began operation last summer. While there is no central sewerage in the Village of Rhinebeck, some pressure has been brought to bear by local businessmen for it and the village board has worked on to fear from this man, ever applications for funds for such a project within the past few months.

Policeman Is Sentenced, First in Newburgh Case

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI)—A Newburgh policeman was verbally blistered by a judge Thursday and then sentenced to six years in prison on convictions for burglarizing stores while in uniform. "That badge you wore is a badge of honor and you insulted it," said Supreme Court Justice George Beisheim Jr. He sentenced former Ptl. David A. Birdsall, 45, a 15-year veteran, to three concurrent terms of six years each on his convictions last month for second degree burglary. The thefts from stores occurred in 1970 and 1971. Birdsall was the first to be sentenced of 16 Newburgh policemen accused of wrongdoing in the Lower Hudson Valley city. After making a plea for leniency, Birdsall's attorney, Daniel J. Bloom, said he would immediately ask the Appellate Division in Brooklyn to free his client on bail pending appeal. Birdsall was also sentenced to two, six-month terms and one for a year on convictions of lesser charges. Twelve of the other men pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentencing. Birdsall could have received a maximum of 15 years on each of the main charges. "I feel the public has nothing to fear from this man, ever again," his attorney said. "He has learned a bitter lesson."

Job Satisfaction

Two years ago, a task-force report submitted by George P. Shultz, then Secretary of Labor, warned that the "blue collar blues" were undermining industrial efficiency and social stability. Now as assistant to the President and chairman of the new Domestic Council, Secretary of the Treasury Shultz is in a position to do something constructive about his own report, confirmed by another task force appointed by outgoing Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliott L. Richardson.

The new study, based on thousands of interviews with both blue and white collar workers, found that "interesting work" outranks higher pay in the scale of values of many workers. That should be vital news for Peter J.

Brennan, the Secretary of Labor-designate, who could team up with Shultz and Richardson to make a strong Cabinet team urging what to do about labor dissatisfaction.

Wholesale disaffection among U.S. workers swells welfare rolls, contributes to drug and alcoholic addiction, lowers output, produces shoddy goods and inflicts a sense of failure and waste on countless people.

That is more than enough to persuade President Nixon and his domestic advisors to do something to reverse disaffection and inspire workers. Higher production, a return of the traditional work ethic, and all-around work satisfaction would be the best possible present the President could give the country at the beginning of his second term in office.

Cost of Alcohol

The cost of alcoholic beverages for a shindig is going up. According to the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life, Minneapolis, it comes to $92 a year for every member of the family. Yes, every member, including babies and juveniles as well as the adults.

In 10 years, the nation's total spending for alcoholic beverages has increased 34 per cent from $10,665,000,000 in 1962 to $19,122,000,000 last year and something exceeding that for this year according to projections. In the same decade, the population rise was 12 per cent.

Actually, the volume of alcoholic beverages consumed per person is slightly less than it was at the hearty days of the dawn of the century. Government statistics for the first decade of the 1900s reveal an annual per capita consumption of 22 gallons: 20 gallons of beer and ale, two quarts of wine and six quarts of distilled liquors. Of course for those who don't drink, the heavier drinkers take up the slack with more than their share.

Today's family output buys nearly 22 gallons of assorted beverages including 19½ gallons of beer and ale, five quarts of wine and champagne and four quarts of distilled liquors. This would indicate that inflation accounts for the $19 billion spent compared to the $10 billion spent even a decade ago. We would buy that if we didn't see the millions of alcoholics who make any moderate assessment foolish.

WASHINGTON — It was the Joint Chiefs, more than anyone else, who persuaded President Nixon to disrupt the secret talks. But at this writing, the President and Kissinger have withheld the

This is the word from sources close to the negotiations, whose access to all the relevant documents, nevertheless, has been limited. Few have seen all the paperwork relating to the peace effort.

Henry Kissinger, stung by criticism of his handling of the negotiations, has released the full transcripts of the secret talks. But at this writing, the President and Kissinger have withheld the transcripts from some of their closest advisors.

Other documents have been tightly restricted and the Xerox machines have been monitored to prevent unauthorized copying. Our sources, however, have been able to give us some of the hidden facts.

The 58-page draft agreement, which Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho hammered out in Paris last October, was approved at first by the President. He sent messages to North Vietnam's Premier Pham Van Dong, requesting only minor agreement and suggesting Kissinger might fly directly from Saigon to Hanoi to add the final touches.

Not once in these messages did the President question the basic text of the draft agreement. The objections were raised after Kissinger sat down in Saigon with South Vietnam's President Thieu. Still, Kissinger was confident enough of a settlement that he made his famous "peace is at hand" statement on October 26.

Military Advice

But meanwhile, the President was having some second thoughts about the draft agreement. Our sources say he was influenced less by Thieu, however, than by the Joint Chiefs.

For suddenly, Gen. Creighton Abrams, the Army chief, and Adm. Noel Gayler, the Pacific commander, began issuing dire, secret warnings that the agreement would leave the survival of a non-Communist regime in grave doubt.

The Joint Chiefs urgently advised the President not to sign an accord with Hanoi at least until the Saigon regime received enough military supplies to defend itself. For once the agreement was signed, the United States couldn't furnish new equipment but only replacements.

Nixon agreed to hold off the signing and sent a cable to Hanoi, asking Premier Pham Van Dong for a postponement. At the same time, the President ordered a massive airlift of supplies to Saigon. The shipments included hundreds of planes and helicopters, tons of arms and ammunition.

There had been verbal agreement in Paris that both the political and military status quo would not be changed in the South before the cease-fire. The North Vietnamese reacted by preparing for a resumption of fighting. School children were evacuated from Hanoi, for example, in apparent anticipation of renewed bombing.

In Paris, Le Duc Tho protested to Kissinger that the military shipments to Saigon violated their understanding and, therefore, withdrew the concessions that had been made earlier. Although the talks continued and progress was made, the Communists suddenly became difficult and kept reopening old issues.

Ultimatum to Hanoi

Earlier, for example, they had agreed to the unconditional release of American prisoners within 60 days after the ceasefire. When they brought this up for renegotiation, the President angrily summoned Kissinger home.

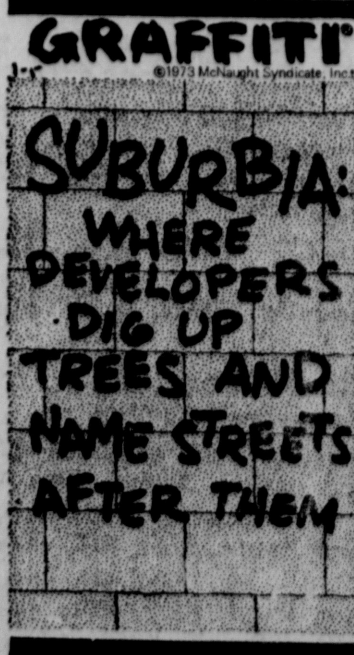

He also sent another cable to Pham Van Dong, offering him a choice between bargaining or bombing. The ultimatum gave Hanoi 72 hours to renew serious bargaining.

The President, meanwhile, reviewed the military contingency plans with the Joint Chiefs, who ordered preparations for the most massive bombing raids of the war. His strategy was not only to cripple Hanoi's military power but to demonstrate that Russia and China would not come to North Vietnam's rescue.

This was a gamble Nixon had taken last May when he ordered the mining of North Vietnam's harbors and the bombing of her supply lines. He correctly calculated that Moscow and Peking would not intervene. This would alarm the North Vietnamese and bring them to the truce table, he believed.

He decided to take the same gamble in December, demonstrating once again he could strike Hanoi a mortal blow without Russian-Chinese intervention. His purpose again was to compel the North Vietnamese to come to terms.

Throughout the bombing, he carefully kept his lines open to Hanoi, Peking and Moscow. Now Kissinger is ready to go back to Paris to put the finishing touches, if possible, to a Vietnam settlement.

Leaving Us Speechless

WASHINGTON According to J. Willard Marriott, chairman of the 1973 Inaugural Committee, this year's swearing-in ceremony of the President will be superefficient, self-sustaining and cost-conscious.

Marriott, a tycoon in the fast-food business, has designed an inaugural corporation with a short-order life of 10 weeks that aims to make $4 million during that time.

Herewith a suggestion that Marriott might pass along to the man-of-the-hour from cost-conscious Americans: Could the President just leave us a memo?

There's no reason why Marriott's outfit still can't turn a profit on those $40 inaugural ball tickets or $500 concert tickets or even the $5 souvenir booklets loaded with pictures of the Nixon family. A speech may not be necessary.

Judging from the message of the American public during the past several months, there may be no public outcry at all if the President doesn't appear in public to give a speech.

The last time Mr. Nixon answered a question in a press conference was Oct. 5.

The last time Mr. Nixon addressed real, live Americans out in the open was Nov. 4 at the airport in Ontario, Calif. Since then he has been mainly a ventriloquist for Ronald Ziegler.

At that appearance in Ontario the President provided a historical footnote for the crowd saying that "it is the last time I will speak to a rally as a candidate in my whole life."

"I believe that we have the chance — and this is our goal — to make the next four years the best four years in America's history," he said.

Did anyone really believe him? Did the American electorate march to election booths filled with a superabundance of self-confidence, knowing that pulling that lever was a prelude to Utopia?

The American voter was promised peace in Vietnam by the winner of the 1972 Presidential election. The American voter was promised peace in Vietnam by the winner of the 1968 election and by the winner of the 1964 election.

If Americans really expected glistening new initiatives from a President re-elected by a landslide, Mr. Nixon would probably have sensed that expectation and fulfilled it somehow.

But the "mandate" may have been a message from a flat, tired and sluggish electorate. The mandate may be for the status quo or, at best, for creative drift.

Camp David and Key Biscayne are as apt places as any for pondering the message from Americans. The President has been sending a few memos and receiving some in preparing for his inaugural message.

If the President marshals his best eloquence for the Jan. 20 speech (probably discarding the memo idea as "the popular thing to do politically"), he may bear in mind that he faces a jaded audience, bored by politics, bored by the pomp of official ceremony.

As Mr. Nixon gives his last inaugural speech of his whole life, he should know of his audience and of his nation, that it may be the last time they pay attention.

When the Mighty Have Fallen

There is something about the death of a President which makes mortals of us all. Momentarily, the big black bird with the shiny wings perches over every man. There is a pause in the life stream; a sense of foreboding.

I will not write about Harry S. Truman. It has been written and rewritten. The rusty flowers on his grave spin away on winds of chance. I was a growing boy when Warren G. Harding died in San Francisco. But I remember the heavily laden kids on the street with their "Extras" shouting: "President Harding Dies. President Harding Dies." I can recreate the hawking sound today.

The demise of Herbert Hoover hit me harder than most because I had spent his 85th birthday with him researching a magazine article. We sat alone in a small dining room, part of a large suite in the Waldorf Towers.

He was a firm, robust man, slightly deaf, with a vital interest in everything. He is the only man I know who turned on two radios in opposite corners of a room to listen to the news reports.

He told me he planned to write "four more books," all in longhand. He used a bowlful of Ticonderoga pencils. His greatest pride was a breakfast laden with bone china left by Mrs. Hoover. "It's not mine," he said softly. "I'm the trustee for my son."

Hoover, at 85, had no valet. He dressed and bathed himself. I asked about the possibility of a fall at night when he was alone. He stomped his large feet and grinned. "Never," he said. "It will never happen."

I did not meet Franklin D. Roosevelt, but I felt as though he was my father. My sharpest memory of that April 1945 was when two big steam locomotives hauled the 10-car funeral train out of Warm Springs northbound for Washington. The funeral car had huge, well-lighted picture windows and inside was a flag-draped casket and four uniformed men standing guard as the Pullmans rocked slowly through the night.

The train stopped somewhere in the Carolinas about 3 a.m. to take on water. On each side were red clay cliffs. A black man came out of a shack and looked down. He hurried back to cabins in the fields and awakened others. A similar thing occurred on the hill on the far side.

They collected near the edge and looked down. Someone in a wailing voice began to sing: "Hand Me Down My Walking Cane." Others took it up. The sound required part of a second to reach the other side, where voices joined the chorus. The voices were out of synchronization but they came from hearts which understood that this man, above others, needed a cane. The train stood panting at the water tower, listening.

Everybody seems to remember what they were doing on November 22, 1963. I was aboard my boat. Away We Go IV, pulling slowly into a gasoline dock at Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The pump boy yelled: "Turn your radio on. The President's been shot."

I turned it on at the flying bridge and heard a Babel of indecipherable words. The only part I understood was: "... a priest just left the hospital." I looked at my watch. The time was 1:15 p.m. President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was dead.

The charmer was gone; the clotheshorse; the wit. The voice of tomorrow had been stilled. The boat was moored. I sat stunned, my mind tumbling with visions. Mrs. Bishop and I had spent four days with him at the White House in October. Five weeks later his bloody head reposed on roses in his wife's lap.

I had spent the time with him to research a slender and unpretentious book called "A Day in the Life of President Kennedy." It was a happy volume, a closeup portrait of a young President at work and a family man at home. The book had written itself in the time Kelly and I spent on the island of Aruba.

The President had asked for a carbon copy. He had taken it with him to Texas. The erratic mind becomes scattered. I sat in the sunshine thinking only of the last conversation we had had. It was a topic I would not mention to a President: assassination. He was trying to be complimentary: "I read your book 'The Day Lincoln Was Shot,'" he said. "You know, he was right. They can't protect you. If there is a nut high up with a rifle ..."

Now Truman is gone at twice the age of Kennedy. The 33rd President took a long time making his exit and I smiled. "You always had a lot of guts," I kept thinking. "Now the hour has struck and you refuse to leave until you're damned good and ready." ...

Nun Changes Eating, Dress Habits habit were entirely too obvious with the new street length, shaped attire.

"Now," she said in an interview, "the rolls would show. Besides, when I went to pick up my new habit, the sister in charge said, 'Nothing for you. We have only up to size 20.'"

So the nun went on a carefully controlled diet, shed 78 pounds, dropping from 212 to 134 and from a size 44 habit to a size 10 or 12.

Losing the weight took her 15 months of willpower. The nun smiled as she recalled what her food hangups were — "candy, cake and ice cream."

"One soda led to another. I could put away half a gallon of ice cream at a time."

"I used to have three chins. Today I have bones I never knew I owned. I used to huff and puff when I walked. Now I can run without all that."

Her hours as a nurse at St. Vincent's Hospital Medical Center at the time she was putting on excess weight didn't help. She used to work the 4 p.m. to midnight shift.

This meant a lot of emergency room duty. The hospital, and she lives there, is located on New York's West Side and the nun recalled that many cases were knifings.

beatings, drug overdose, psych cases and the like.

"It was frustrating, so I ate," she said. "I'd get up for early mass, breakfast with the sisters, eat dinner with the sisters. And police would come in with Cokes and candy. I snacked on everything. At bedtime I'd have root beer with a double dip of ice cream."

But it was for health as well as the change in the traditional attire that sent the 60-year-old nun to Weight Watchers, an international organization guiding fatties of both sexes to weight reduction and control.

"I developed a bluish tint to my skin," she said. "I mentioned it to my doctor and he said, 'Well, I won't put you on a diet. You'll have to make up your own mind.'" Sister Mary Thomas said when she started attending the Weight Watchers lectures, she clung to the traditional black, ankle length habit, "until I began to drop pounds."

When we talked, she wore a winter white habit, street length, belted, and with the traditional bonnet-type head cover of the Sisters of Charity.

"But I keep one of the old habits on the closet door," she said, "to remind me of how I used to be."

When the sister began losing pounds, other St. Vincent's employees expressed interest in WW. So she enrolled in the training workshop for WW lecturers and said that now classes may run as high as 88 men and women, not only from the hospital complex but from neighborhood families.

Currently, the sister does two WW lectures weekly, the other at a church in Brooklyn, plus four weigh-ins. Any member of Weight Watchers is put on the scales and pounds recorded at each meeting.

Her earnings go into the Sisters of Charity retirement fund — "we have 357 retired sisters who are not supported by Social Security."

The sister, five feet four with bright blue eyes and graying hair, is a native of Newark, N.J. She studied nursing at St. Vincent's, which the Sisters of Charity established in 1849, and studied obstetrics at Bellevue Hospital.

The order, however, is primarily a teaching one, founded in 1809 by Mother Seton, the first native American the Catholic Church declared blessed.

PROSPECTIVE MEMBERS of Zonta Club of Kingston were entertained at a luncheon and business meeting of the local group Wednesday, Jan. 3 in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Guests were welcomed by Sister Mary Charles, Zonta president. Beverlee Mulligan, at left, who is membership

Elizabeth Post: Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(c) 1973 Emily Post Institute, Inc.

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Mrs. L. J. Chiara of Bearsville, New York.

My letter concerns a problem presented by Women's Lib.

Recently young friends of mine married. The young lady announced that she was retaining her own name, prefixed by "Ms." I have several other friends who prefer this method of address, too. Since I correspond frequently with these friends, I have adopted the practice of addressing the envelope to "Ms. Jane Blank" and using both first names in my salutation, as "Dear Jane and Joe," continuing my letter to include news for both. I can think of no other way that would not make it look as if the couple were just living together — such as using both Ms. Blank and Mr. Blue on the envelope. Is my method correct?

Another question now presents itself. Is it correct to use the address Mr. and Mrs. Blue when sending greeting cards? Must I send separate cards, or should I address one card in the manner mentioned above for personal letters, writing both first names above the greeting?

Mrs. L. J. Chiara
Dear Mrs. Chiara:

Women's Lib is certainly complicating life in some ways! Why a woman who decides to become united with a man in marriage — presumably for life — should not wish to share his name — socially — as well as his other possessions, I cannot see. A woman may have every reason to retain her own identity and name in her professional life, but why bother to marry at all if you do not wish your personal lives to be merged?

Since common courtesy demands that one respect another's wishes in regard to her title or name, you, Mrs. Chiara, have chosen the best method for addressing letters to your friend. If "Mr. and Mrs." is unacceptable to her, you should not use it even on cards.

I cannot in good faith answer the question you ask about cards because I think it is most unreasonable to expect people to send two cards to a married couple, and that is the only possible answer. As you say, to address the card to Ms. Blank and Mr. Blue certainly implies, at least, that they are living together without benefit of matrimony.

I would welcome any solutions to this letter from my liberated readers. I would also like to know which name a child would take in these cases, or should he have a third name so as not to lose his identity.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have had it! I am fed up with people condemning my parents for having seven children.

The first thing they ask is, "Are you Catholic?" (We're not — we're Protestant.) Then they make some dumb crack about my parents probably being hooked on sex or something.

Well, I happen to know that my mother planned each one of us, and as long as my father can afford that many children, I don't think it's anybody's business.

My mother has never had to work outside the home one day after she was married, and that's more than a lot of mothers can say. If my parents can afford to have a dozen children, why should they be made to feel

Tiny Tips

Tent Coats

Watch for tent coats this spring. American and European designers are showing many of same.

Graceful Look

Some fashion observers are using the word "grace" to describe spring looks being served up by American designers. The clothes are the ultimate in romantic and feminine looks.

Cultured Pearls

Spring fashions demand cultured pearls, to heighten the ladylike look.

Pearl Choker

Watch for the cultured pearl choker to make it back to fashion's front ranks for spring.

ONE OF SEVEN

DEAR ONE: If people continue to multiply at the present rate, this world of ours is going to be in serious trouble. For some up-to-date reading materials on this subject, inquire at your public library.

DEAR ABBY: Six weeks ago (a week before she married my son) my daughter in law said she would like to call me by my first name since I was more like a friend than a mother, I said, "Fine. Whatever makes you comfortable."

The first time she called me "Nellie" it hit me, wrong. I realized it really wasn't fine with me. I love her like a daughter, not like a friend, and I didn't feel comfortable being called "Nellie" by my daughter in law. I would rather she call me "Mom" or "Mother Smith" or even "Mrs. Smith" as she did before.

I have an idea she and my son cooked up this idea because he feels more comfortable calling her parents by their first names rather than "Mom and Dad."

Have you any suggestions? I want to resolve this before any more time passes.

NAME PROBLEM IN ILLINOIS
DEAR PROBLEM: Tell your daughter in law that you don't feel comfortable being called "Nellie," and would she mind calling you "Mother Smith," "Mother Nellie," or something with which you both feel comfortable.

DEAR ABBY: My almost-16-year-old daughter and her 18-year-old boy friend have the habit of lying down side by side on our very narrow couch while watching television. They don't get embarrassed when her daddy or I walk in and find them this way.

In some respects I may be old fashioned, but I think some things can go a little too far, and I don't like to see my daughter and her boy friend in that position. If they are that close in our home, I wonder how close they get when they are out on a date.

I don't like to be a square mother, Abby, but don't you think I should ask them to please sit up when they're watching TV?

WANTS TO DO RIGHT
DEAR WANTS: The position you describe is too close for comfort. Tell your daughter that she should keep both feet on the floor. And that goes for her boy friend, too.

CONFIDENTIAL TO
"TORN DAUGHTER IN HIGHLAND PARK": I can understand why your mother is bitter about your father, from whom she is separated, but she had no right to forbid you to invite him to your home. Tell your mother you will let her know ahead of time when your father will be there so she won't run into him.

Salt Lake City New Winter Olympic Site

PICKING A PLACE—Clifford Buck (R), president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, receives Salt Lake City, Utah, brochure from its mayor, E. J. Garn, after local was chosen as site for 1976 Winter Olympics here Thursday. Looking on are (L-R) Reno, Nevada-Lake Tahoe representative Eric Aurt and Lake Placid, N.Y., Mayor Robert J. Peacock. Those three sites had also been considered. Mayor Garn said his committee would immediately fly to Washington to work on a national funding for the games. (UPI)

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic Committee has made its decision, unanimously selecting Salt Lake City, Utah, to replace Denver as site of the 1976 Winter Olympics. Now it's up to the International Olympic Committee to approve the shift or give the Olympics to a European city.

The 51-member U.S. Olympic Committee Thursday listened to presentations by four cities for three hours and then needed only 15 minutes to decide unanimously on Salt Lake City. The IOC will meet Jan. 15 at Lausanne, Switzerland, to render a decision on Salt Lake City. A number of European cities, the most prominent being Innsbruck, Austria, site of the 1964 Games, are interested in playing host to the 1976 Olympics.

E.J. "Jack" Garn, Salt Lake City's mayor, left for Washington immediately after the decision in an effort to raise the estimated $30 million necessary to fund the Games. Garn said he was hopeful of receiving the $15.5 million Congress had set aside for Denver, which had to cancel when Colorado residents overwhelmingly voted down a referendum to host the Games.

"Many facilities were planned when we made our presentation for the 1972 Games," Garn said. "And we have spent $100 million in their construction. Now we must work on a national funding for the Games and are hopeful of receiving the $15.5 million Congress had earmarked for Denver."

Salt Lake City was chosen over Lake Placid, N.Y.; the Reno-North Lake Tahoe area; and the South Lake Tahoe complex. Garn must now make his next presentation before the IOC.

The decision to award the Games to Salt Lake City met with considerable opposition. Lake Placid supporters claimed Salt Lake was chosen because the USOC "wants the Games to go by default to Europe."

Roy Kennedy, spokesman for the Lake Placid group, said retiring USOC President Clifford Buck was irked at Colorado's rejection of the Games. "He lives in Denver and he's the one who pushed for the Games there and got his face slapped," Kennedy said. "We think they want the Games to go by default to Europe."

"Also, their facilities will be at 11,000 feet and that's more than the Olympic people will tolerate," Kennedy said, explaining there was an Olympic rule against Games at that altitude.

Frank Cassas, an attorney promoting a regional Lake Tahoe concept, said Squaw Valley's decision to submit its own bid cost the area the Games.

"I feel Salt Lake was awarded the Games only because, at the last minute, Squaw Valley decided to submit its own bid," Cassas said. "As a consequence, South Lake Tahoe submitted its bid because it was cut out of the Squaw Valley plan. Both groups went back to New York. The U.S. Olympic Committee didn't want any part of the hassle."

An even more important group said to be opposing the Games is the population of Utah. A recent poll of Utah residents showed them 7-1 against hosting the Games and one paper estimated a 12-1 ratio against the Olympics in Utah. Much of the opposition was based on ecological grounds, the same basis on which Colorado residents rejected the Games.

The two questions remaining are whether or not Salt Lake can get federal funding and whether or not the IOC decides to keep the Games in the United States. "We can't host the Olympics without the federal funding," said Fred Ball executive vice president of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce.

Both questions will be answered on Jan. 15.

Lake Placid Residents Dismayed

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Many residents of this upstate town were surprised and dismayed by the U.S. Olympic Committee's choice of Salt Lake City, Utah, as its entry for the 1976 Winter Olympics.

A local mail carrier, Carl Gonyea, called Thursday's decision "an unjust one" and wondered why Lake Placid, which he and many others claimed already had the facilities for the games, had been rejected.

"I don't know why that area was accepted over our bid," Mrs. George Sullivan, a retired school teacher said. She voiced the belief of many residents of the Lake Placid area that this was a chance for economic improvement. The area is one of the most economically depressed in the state.

"I'm sure it would have helped in the employment in this area—which is seasonal," she noted.

Beginning in November, the area began to buzz with anticipation upon learning that Denver's host role for the games had been rejected by Colorado voters in an election day referendum. Local sponsors argued that Lake Placid, which hosted the first U.S. Winter Olympics in 1932, already had 70 per cent of the necessary facilities.

The local plan centered around the concept of returning the Olympics to the athletes and playing down the spectators' role.

When Gov. Rockefeller announced financial support for the games on Tuesday, many citizens in the Lake Placid area were convinced that they would gain the USOC nod.

After receiving the bad news, Arthur Thompson, the superintendent of the Lake Placid School District, said he was disappointed since he liked "the idea of bringing the Olympics back to normalcy."

A housewife who described herself as one "too old for sports," said she thought "that if it wasn't such a burden for the taxpayer, it might have been nice to have them here."

The woman, Mrs. Cecil Kirby, said the announcement also came as a surprise to her.

Bernard Alder, president of the local chamber of commerce, said he was "very disappointed" by the committee's decision. Alder said he was sure Lake Placid would be picked.

A former bobsled competitor, Miller, 25, Stockton, 31 and Joseph McKillip, immediately suggested that the area bid to host the 1976 World Bobsled Championships as another celebration of the nation's bicentennial. The area already is hosting the 1973 World Bobsled Championships next month.

But at least one area resident felt the decision was "a wise one."

"If we had the time, we could have done a first-class job equal to any place in the world," Godfrey Dewey, president of the 1932 Winter Olympics said. "The uncertainty of the finances and the deadline of time were probably considered."

Illinois A Weekend Away

UCCCC in Connecticut

STONE RIDGE, N.Y. — Besides Ulster and host Robert Morris, the other entries include Paducah, Ky.; Burlington and Keuka from Iowa; Columbia State of Tennessee; and two St. Louis, Missouri entries—Forest Park and Merrimac.

First round pairings send Ulster against Forest Park and Robert Morris against Keuka in the upper draw, with Columbia-Burlington and Paducah-Merrimac in the lower draw. Theoretically, that makes Paducah the tournament favorite and Ulster the No. 2 seed.

Coach Mike Perry reacted to Ulster's seeding with quiet calm. "I don't know much about the teams except by past reputation, so we'll have to take them as they come."

Meanwhile, back in Connecticut, Mitchell College awaits Ulster's invasion with a 7-2 record, an offensive average of 86 points and defensive norm of 77 points, statistics that indicate the Nutmegers will not be a pushover.

Mitchell claims on of Region XV's top performers in 6-3 Frank Slizinski, who is averaging 18.6 points going into tonight's game. The team's leading rebounder is forward Paul Friedman, who averages 11 rebounds a game.

Coach Doug Yarnell is properly concerned about Ulster's strength. "Ulster is one of the toughest teams we play," says Yarnell. "They have a height advantage over us but we hope to give them a better game than last year."

A Saturday's contest with Post 3-5 should present lesser risks for the Senators. Coach Howard Busse's squad has been scoring an average of 78.0 points a game, but giving up 84.0, a figure that Ulster can expect to inflate somewhat.

The two Post standouts in a losing campaign are Floyd

Tarvin, a 6-1 forward who averages 21.0 points and 6-5 center Steve McCallister, who has averaged 16 rebounds a game.

Ulster's reputation, of course, precedes them everywhere, as Coach Busse noted with complete respect.

"We're anxious to see Ulster," he says. "They have quite a reputation. They were terrific last year and I hear they're even better this season." Proving that Busse has done his home work well.

"We have cut down on our offensive errors to have a chance against Ulster," Busse added. "We're averaging 20-25 turnovers a game. I'm undecided on how to play them defensively, they are so well balanced and equally effective against man-for-man or the zone." How true, Post will learn come Saturday night.

Nets Looking Sick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Paultz had the flu and couldn't make the trip to Virginia with the New York Nets.

As a result, his team never looked sick.

With their top rebounder out of the game, the Nets were badly beaten on the boards—and just beaten badly, 128-97, by the Virginia Squires in their American Basketball Association game Thursday night.

Led by Julius Erving, the Squires outscored the Nets by a 54-41 margin. Erving scored 26 points and hauled down 10 rebounds to make it a Virginia runaway.

In the night's other ABA games, the Indiana Pacers ripped the San Diego Conquistadors 125-115 and the Denver Rockets walloped the Dallas Chaparrals 125-111.

In the National Basketball Association, the Chicago Bulls trimmed the Houston Rockets 111-97 and the Golden State Warriors stopped the Portland Trailblazers 108-103.

The Virginia-New York contest was no contest from the second period on. The Squires outscored the Nets by 10 points in the second stanza and 13 in the third to take a 30-point lead going into the final period.

The Nets, who obviously missed Paultz' average of 12 rebounds a game, were led by George Carter's 22 points.

Donnie Freeman and Mel Daniels fired a fourth-quarter rally that sent Indiana over San Diego. The game was tied for the 19th and last time, at 105, when Daniels fired in a short jumper.

Daniels then hit two more quick baskets, Darnell Hillman added a free throw and Freeman scored the next seven points to break the game wide open.

Ralph Simpson's 33 points powered Denver over Dallas. The victory was a runaway, as the Chans never came closer than eight points.

Chet Walker, Bob Love and Garfield Heard combined for 72 points to lead Chicago over Houston. After building a 55-42 halftime lead behind their big Golden State's victory was three, the Bulls outscored the Rockets 14-5 in the first six minutes of the third period to put the game away.

Coleman at Pine Bush; OCS Hosts Highland

Will Saugerties 'Press' Kingston High?

By IRA FUSFLED

KINGSTON — Saugerties High School's basketball team plays Kingston tonight at 8 p.m. in the Kate Walton Field House and although the game doesn't promise to be an artistic success, it should carry enough of the necessary emotion to keep the place jumping.

The game highlights a full schedule in both the Dutchess County Scholastic League and the Ulster County Athletic League, the first since the holiday break.

In the DCSL, it will be Ketcham at Poughkeepsie, Arlington at Lourdes, and John Jay at Roosevelt. Rhinebeck is at Dover in the Bi-Valley Division.

The UCAL is topped by Ellenville at Liberty. Coleman visits Pine Bush; Highland goes to Oteora; Red Hook is at Rondout; and Marlboro travels to New Paltz.

Saugerties and Kingston have played three games each, with the Sawyers victorious twice and the Maroons still searching for their first triumph. But both teams are winless in the league, Saugerties having been beaten by Beacon and Kingston falling to Lourdes and John Jay.

The game doesn't take on quite the same flavor as did the long-awaited football encounter between the two schools (you no-doubt recall that Saugerties won that one), but the highly enthusiastic Sawyer crowd is still regarding the contest as a major event.

Kingston would surely like to make up for the football loss with a win in basketball, but right now, with KHS floundering after three defeats, any victory would be more than welcome.

Off Kingston's showing at Newburgh Wednesday and Saugerties' performance against Cathedral in the Oteora Tournament, you can bet that the Sawyers will be pressing, hoping to force KHS into as many turnovers as it committed versus the Goldbacks.

The Maroons, however, should be a little bit better prepared for such a tactic. Not only did they see it in Newburgh, but coach Mike Rienzo promised to give them another taste of pressure in Thursday's practice session.

Kingston would seem to be the bigger team, a rarity for the Maroons. Outside of starting center Joe Hellenschmidt and reserve Scott Wilson, Saugerties will be overmatched by Tom Turco, Chuck Jackson, Cory Chambers, Kim Anderson, and Fred Jackson.

The Sawyers have three legitimate scoring threats in Larry Panella, Scott Emery, and Chris Luley. So far, Kingston has shown only one, guard Raymond Gay.

Rienzo summed up the feeling of both he and Sawyer coach Larry Marcus when he said, "I look for a good game. Both teams are aggressive and emotions will be high."

The UCAL contests shape up this way:

Ellenville at Liberty—Liberty beat Red Hook following an opening loss to Coleman, then dropped two non-league tournament games in Orange County. Ellenville has won three UCAL tilts, losing only to powerful Fallsburgh. More and more people are rallying behind the Elties as the team to beat in the league, especially with Leon Ware and Ray Younger playing so well.

Coleman at Pine Bush—The Statesmen hope to get back on the right track against weak Pine Bush. They didn't look too good in the OCS Tournament, but might have been down after assuming the lead in the Southern Division with a 4-0 mark. Pine Bush hasn't won a game in quite some time. It could be due.

Marlboro at New Paltz—New coach Joe Ciampi has the Dukes looking better every time out. They're 3-0 in the league, 6-0 overall. Ciampi has stressed defense, but has shown off a couple of top offensive efforts, not the least of which was Denny Pesavento's 33 points against Rondout Wednesday.

The Hugies are 0-1 in the league, 1-2 overall, and could be ready to make a move following the Bucky Sutter-led win over Chester last week.

Highland at Oteora—Coach Ron Pape has finally found his lineup and Oteora seems to be cutting down on its mistakes. It must pick up a league win now before its too late. The Indians stand 0-3 in the league, 0-5 overall. Highland is 2-0 in UCAL play, and like its football counterpart, is winning without the big stars of the past.

Red Hook at Rondout—The Ganders are still searching for their first win and the prospects aren't very good for tonight. Red Hook has already been stunned with a defeat, one which sent it to the basement of the Southern Division. Another loss this early could be disastrous.

Season in One Night For Raiders' Ward

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Ward had a pretty good season Thursday night.

Ward scored five goals and assisted on another as the New York Raiders romped over Ottawa 9-4 Thursday night in the only World Hockey Association game played.

Those six scoring points matched Ward's total for 71 National Hockey League games with Vancouver last season. They also lifted his league-leading scoring total to 69, a fat nine points ahead of New England's Terry Caffery.

In the only NHL game played Thursday, St. Louis trimmed Boston 4-2 and Detroit took Buffalo 4-2.

Ward was a seldom-used defenseman at Vancouver but has blossomed into an All Star center for the Raiders.

He will be the starting center for the East in the WHA All Star game at Quebec Saturday. "It's my first All Star game and quite a thrill," said Ward. "Maybe Bud Poile will be watching."

Poile, in case you didn't know, is Ward's ex-boss at Vancouver.

The six goals gave Ward 33 for the season. And linemates Wayne Rivers and Brian Bradley also enjoyed big nights. Rivers had five assists and Bradley scored two goals and assisted on three others.

Wooden Really Admits Pressure Is on UCLA

By United Press International

UCLA's Bruins are nearing the all-time college record for consecutive victories and Coach John Wooden has decided to do something about it.

UCLA goes against Oregon tonight in quest of its 54th consecutive victory and Wooden feels the pressure is starting to get to his club.

"I think perhaps there is some pressure about the winning string," Wooden said. "It is something that we have never talked about. I know everyone else is, all our fans and everyone the kids come into contact with."

"So I have decided to start talking about it myself to my players. Maybe it will loosen them up a little."

The college record for consecutive victories is 60, set by the University of San Francisco in the mid 1950s. UCLA also plays Oregon State Saturday night and a pair of victories would leave the Bruins only five short of the record.

In Thursday night action, eighth-ranked Southwestern Louisiana, taking advantage of 23 turnovers, turned back Pan American, 86-75. Dwight Lamar, USL's star guard, collected 23 points but could hit only 9 of 23 field-goal attempts.

No. 9 North Carolina scored the first six points of the game and went on to bury Furman, 100-67. George Karl and Dar-ryle Eliston hit 16 points each and Ed Stahl and Ed Harrison contributed 15 each for the Tar Heels.

Kevin Stacom's career-high 30 points carried Providence to a 79-59 rout of Rhode Island. The Friars went on a 17-4 burst early in the second half to break open the game.

Louisville, with Junior Bridgman contributing 20 points, opened defense of its Missouri Valley Conference title with a 76-69 victory over North Texas State.

NEW PALTZ

A funny thing happened to the New Paltz State College basketball Hawks on their way to their third victory of the season Thursday night. They lost it.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning

couldn't count the ways she loved, and it's getting to the point where journalists covering the Hawk season are sorely pressed to explain the incredible string of narrow losses for Coach Si Pesavento's squad.

Take John Jay College of New York, for example. They came to town Thursday night with a 2-7 record and allegedly porous defense. The Hawks anticipated a victory — even a modest one — as a springboard for the second half of the 1972-73 season.

It didn't work that way. Jay trailed at the half 39-29. With 11:30 left, Jay still trailed by a ten — 58-48. Final score? Jay 73, New Paltz 70 after a foul-ridden, mob-basketball charade in the last 10 minutes.

The heart-wrenching Hawk setback was the 11th in 13 outings for New Paltz and John Jay, notching its third win, will never get a bigger steal.

The Hawk loss overshadowed a brilliant individual performance by Glen Hudson, who racked up 28 points — 18 in the first half to account for State's early domination of the game. But the other Hawk big guns simply didn't have it in the stretch.

Here's the unbelievable sequence of events that led to the Hawks' downfall:

7:13 left — Jay ties score 58-

58. Jay forges ahead moments later 62-60 and Artie Shapiro ties it for New Paltz at 62-62

with 5:17 left to play.

4:25 — Mike Callaghan misses

1 and 1 try; 4:06 — Marty

Demond fouls Greg McEvoy of

Jay and he misses on 1-1 situation; 3:40 — Shapiro fouls

Paul Leigh of Jay and he misses on 1 and 1.

But wait, there's more! With

3:25 left, Bob Lucas fouls Jay's

Bernard Obey and he misses on 1 and 1. State's luck runs out when Mike McComb, Jay's top scorer with 16 points, converts both ends of a 1 and

1 on a Marty Demond foul and

Jay forges ahead 64-62 with 3:12

left. McComb returns the favor, fouls Demond who cans both ends of 1 and 1 and it's 64-64

with 3:04 left to play.

Glen Hudson has a chance to put State ahead, but he misses first of 1 and 1! Enter Jim Hedrick as the Jay hero of the moment. He hits from outside for deuce, Demond ties at 66-66 and Hedrick buckets two more quickness and it's 70-66 Jay. Tom

Whitaker cuts it to 70-68.

With 1:05 left, Jay goes into a freeze and calls time with 49 seconds remaining. At 0:36,

Callaghan fouls McEvoy who makes one and it's 71-68.

McEvoy fouled by Shapiro, fails to widen the gap. At 0:16,

McComb fouls Hudson and State calls time. Hudson cooly drops both ends of the 1 and

1 and it's down to 71-70 Jay with 16 seconds left. Two seconds later, Tony Heywood fouls Leigh and he makes both ends of a 1 and 1 to open up a 73-70 margin.

With four seconds remaining,

Leigh fouls Demond. State calls time to set up a play. But Demond misses the first try and it's all over.

An unusual basketball report, to be sure. But it just goes to show how a slump-ridden team can find new ways of losing a ball game.

KHS Swimmers Romp

KINGSTON Kingston High's undefeated swimming team let Roy C. Ketcham High have its two school records, then proceeded to trounce the Dutchess squad, 59-36, in Dutchess County Scholastic League competition Thursday.

The victory was Kingston's third straight of the 1972-73 season and the 20th straight for the Maroons over a three-year period. The last Kingston loss was to Warwick High on Feb. 8, 1971.

Kingston swam with a limited squad due to illness, but outstanding performances were turned in by Jack Abernathy, Paul Hanse, Jim Kwasnowski, Jay Rifenburg, Anne St. Denis, John Shults and Rick Stiven. Ketcham's records came in the 200 medley relay in a 2-minute flat clocking and in diving where Don Woisin racked up 111.60 points.

Coach Ron Gabriele saw the turning point for Kingston in the 400-yard freestyle event in which Rick Stiven and John Shults finished one-two. Then the Maroons broke Ketcham's back in the next event — the backstroke where the two girl members of the team — Ann St. Denis and Sue Helmich finished first and third, respectively. Kingston wrapped up the win on the strength of Jim Kwasnowski's first place in the breakstroke.

Ketcham threw a mild scare into Kingston when they led 24-19 as late as the diving event. The winners pulled ahead in the butterfly and were never headed after that.

Kingston faces a tough

Poughkeepsie High team in the Bridge City Jan. 10. Mark Davis has been lost for at least two meets and two other swimmers are out with the flu. The next home test for the Maroons is scheduled Jan. 18 with Our Lady of Lourdes.

Area Representatives Receive Appointments

ALBANY Area representatives in the State Senate and Assembly in Albany have received a number of committee appointments.

State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn of Cornwall has been appointed the chairman of the State Senate's Civil Service and Pension Committee. Schermerhorn was also assigned to the Insurance Committee.

Health Committee Social Service Committee, Commerce and Economic Development Committees.

Woodstock Assemblyman H. Clark Bell received appointments to the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, Judiciary Committee, Banking Committee, and Government Employees Committee.

Sen. Jay Rolison of Poughkeepsie was appointed chairman of the Senate Local Government Committee. He was also assigned to the Judiciary, Codes, Banks and Elections Committees.

Senator Edwyn E. Mason of Hobart was appointed to the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Committee, Commerce and Economic Development Committee, Crime and Corrections Committee, Labor Committee, and Transportation Committee.

he feels legislative pensions should be cut back and that there should be "a wholesale investigation into union pensions."

Schermerhorn said he doesn't think the rank and file union man is getting the benefits he should be deriving from his pension. There should be closer controls, he suggested.

Regarding no-fault insurance, Schermerhorn predicted, "I'm going to have a lot to say about that."

He said he felt his assignments were "very sweeping court reform proposals. The Government out."

Senate leadership, "especially Employees Committee will after having been here in consider the State Pension Commission's anticipated proposals for a major overhaul of the state retirement laws for advanced him in seniority to the all employees."

Bell, now entering his third term as Assemblyman, thanked the Assembly leadership for the appointments and said, "I certainly will do the best job and the advancement is most I can, and I am eagerly looking forward to working in the new session. I hope I will be able to fulfill the confidence you and the people of Ulster County have placed in me."

Rolison said he is looking forward to work with the Local Government Committee. The committee is expected to have a lot to say and do about the relations between the state and local governments, he pointed out.

SWEARING IN—State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, (L), is sworn in by Lt. Governor Wilson in ceremonies held recently in the State Capitol on the opening day of the 1973 of the 40th Senate District comprised of Orange, Rockland and Ulster Counties.

State Sets Date For Bridge Bids

ALBANY The State Department of Transportation will open bids Feb. 8 for rehabilitation of the Rondout Creek Bridge between the City of Kingston and Esopus, Governor Rockefeller announced today.

Special arrangements are being made to assure that the bridge will be closed to motorists and pedestrians for only four months, according to DOT Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler.

Schuler termed this "an extremely short period for work of this kind." "This is only possible," he continued, "because we will install a precast concrete deck instead of the more conventional cast-in-place deck."

A nine-month closing would have been required with the conventional system, it was explained.

Schuler pointed out that the contractor will not be permitted to close the span until the school year ends next June.

The new roadway, to be finished with an asphalt surface over the precast concrete, will be a foot wider than at present. State plans call for a detour route through New Salem, across the Eddyville Bridge and back into Kingston via Route 213. The contract to prepare the detour was awarded in August, and work is underway on the project.

The proposed contract on the 1,063-foot suspension bridge also of all deteriorated steel and concrete, improvement of bridge lighting and related measures.

Damage Funds Listed

WAWARSING The Town of Wawarsing will get $25,095.90 in Federal reimbursement for highway damage done in the township by Tropical Storm Doria, according to an announcement made at Thursday night's town board meeting by Supervisor Frank Harkin.

Councilman Frank Sahler pointed out that the town had been waiting more than a year for the money. Tropical Storm Doria occurred in September 1971.

Sahler said the town had recently had to reborrow $20,000 to meet expenses the town had been counting on the Federal reimbursement to meet. He said getting the money had taken considerable effort on the part of Town Highway Superintendent William Clark, Town Engineer Alex Diachishin, and Harkin.

The residents of the Addis Subdivision will be advised to seek legal counsel and try to make arrangements to have the road in their subdivision dedicated to the town.

Harkin said the maintenance of the road was one of the biggest problems in the township. According to Town Attorney Robert Stapleton, the owner of the subdivision is down south somewhere, and cannot be located. The road is presently private property, and town equipment cannot be legally used on it, in Stapleton's opinion.

Councilman Frank Greco said he was sure that if the town did do work, such as snow plowing, on the road, other town residents in similar situations would bring suit against the board. Harkin is to write the State Attorney General for an opinion on the legality of plowing the road, but Stapleton said he was sure the opinion would be negative.

The town is having difficulty with trailers, according to Harkin. "We're having trouble finding them all," he said. Stapleton was directed to draft an ordinance requiring new trailers to register with the town clerk for a nominal fee — $1 was the fee mentioned. Trailers already in the town would be required to register, but no fee would be charged.

The board will have a conference Jan. 25 on how to spend the money coming to the town from revenue sharing. However, Sahler said there was already agreement on the board that the highway department needed two pick-up trucks, and he suggested the specifications be drawn up now. Bids will not be let on the trucks until after the conference.

The town and village will meet on the town's landfill problems prior to the regular town board audit meeting Jan. 18.

Search for Ellenville Murder Weapon

By JON POWERS

ELLENVILLE — Police conducted an inch by inch search of a five lot section of Ellenville today for the alleged murder weapon used Thursday afternoon in the fatal stabbing of a 35-year-old village resident, by his common-law wife.

Arthur Shanklin was found dead at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the bedroom of the couple's apartment in a ramshackle house at 151 Center Street. Police have charged his wife, 48-year-old Verdene Shanklin, with the murder.

According to William Trapnell, chief of the Ellenville Village Police Department, Mrs. Shanklin left the apartment at 4 p.m. Thursday, shortly after the alleged stabbing. She then walked several hundred feet toward the outskirts of the village until she reached Clinton Street.

Trapnell said the woman then apparently turned around, and asked one of her neighbors for change for a five dollar bill. She then left the house once again and walked through the village via Center Street, Water Street and Canal Street, and then to Police Headquarters on Main Street, where she reported the alleged incident shortly after 6 p.m.

Police were frustrated in their attempts to find the weapon. One officer speculated that the woman could have thrown it into nearby Sandburgh Creek. Today, police carefully traced the woman's footsteps, searching for sign of the weapon. Lawns, sidewalks, gutters and empty lots were probed with metal detectors.

Shanklin was pronounced dead at the scene by Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, who ordered an autopsy performed today at the Kingston City Laboratory to determine the exact cause of death.

Police believe Shanklin died of at least one stab wound to the upper left region of the chest. Chief Trapnell said it was impossible Thursday to tell if the man had been stabbed more than once.

Late Thursday, police conducted an extensive search of the building and apartment for the alleged murder weapon and other evidence. Later, the blood-spattered bedroom was padlocked. Shanklin's body was found on the bed.

According to reports, there were other people in the building when the alleged incident occurred. One, an elderly man known only as "Buffalo Nickel" reportedly told police that Mrs. Shanklin twice told him Thursday that she had stabbed her husband. According to reports, Mrs. Shanklin told "Buffalo Nickel" that her husband had tried to hit her over the head with a chair.

Ellenville Police said today that the Shanklin couple has had "a history of fighting," but refused to say that the stabbing followed an argument.

Mrs. Shanklin was arraigned late Thursday on the murder charge before Wawarsing Town Justice Maurice Rosenstock, and committed to the Ulster County Jail without bail pending a hearing.

Police said that the Shanklins had previously lived in Liberty. It is believed that the couple were childless.

The investigation was headed by Trapnell and BCI Lieutenant D. J. Pinto of the Ellenville

State Police. Village patrolmen, approximately one-half mile east of Main Street near the outskirts of the village. The Shanklins resided in apartment 7 on the ground floor of the building.

County GOP Platform Outlined

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A re-evaluation of county jobs and salaries as well as future uses of county buildings were among 11 planks of the GOP County Legislators' platform of 1973, as outlined by the new Majority Leader Ernest John Gardner (R-Dist. 11) Thursday night.

Meanwhile Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City), who said he felt the Democratic platform would be overshadowed by Republican rhetoric at the county organizational meeting, held his platform speech in abeyance until the February meeting of the County Board.

Gardner called for assigning federal revenue sharing to priority areas, continuing the development of the county park system, implementing a county highway numbering system and improving the county's driver education program.

The Boiceville legislator also called for a continuation of efforts to prevent drug abuse and encourage stronger actions against illicit drug traffic and urged early implementation of the county-wide police communications system.

He also encouraged further participation in the Youth-In-Government program and urged continuance of sound economic practices.

Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature was unanimously reelected to his post after the Democrats selected George Barthel (D-Dist. 10), to oppose him. The vote was 23 to 8 along party lines and Barthel moved to make it unanimous. Two legislators were absent due to illness, James Carroll (D-City), and Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist. 2). William West (R-Dist. 12), served as temporary chairman.

Gardner was designated majority leader and Dr. Gorman, who was designated minority leader, said the county should be proud of the legislative group. He wished Savago good luck in 1973.

A number of appointments were made and approved as follows:

● Savago, Gardner and Gorman were named to represent the county in the Mid-Hudson Inter County Council.

● The following were appointed to the Fire Advisory Board: Herbert Faroute, Robert Waddell, Charles E. Penney, Edward Mains, Oscar Lambert, J. Gregson Greer, Albert Fox, Granville Myer, William Harter, Oscar Newkirk, Stanley Lawrence, Lester C. Elmendorf, Eugene K. Noe (R-Dist.

9), and Lewis C. Hall (R-Dist. 2).

● Arthur Kurtz was named landowner representative to the Region 8 Fish and Wildlife Management Board.

● C. Robert Cousins and the Rev. Edward Farrelly were appointed to the Ulster County Mental Health Board.

● Savago also named the following persons to the Temporary Manpower Council: Frank Greco; executive secretary, County Civil Service Department; Herbert Hecker, county planning director; Albert J. Cawein, county public relations director; Fred H. DuBois, county treasurer; Bernhardt S. Kramer, commissioner of social services; Jose Camallonga Jr., highway superintendent; Gardner, Gorman and himself.

Only one out of 15 resolutions was defeated by a party line vote of 23 to 8. Legislators Barthel and Alex J. Nirenberg (D-Dist. 7), asked the county to oppose the granting of any H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 10), had rate increase to the New York Telephone Company.

Gardner, in voting against the measure for the GOP majority, cited the fact that the Public Service Commission has already turned down a proposed temporary hike. He said that the decision belongs with the province of the PSC.

Barthel disagreed accusing the Republicans of dragging their feet. He said the hike was against presidential guidelines and that opinions were in order inasmuch as public hearings on the proposals were to be held in January.

Meanwhile Legislator Robert to oppose the granting of any H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 10), had rate increase to the New York Telephone Company.

Actor Poitier Issued Order

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A State Supreme Court Justice has ordered actor Sidney Poitier to make a full accounting to the court of his recent earnings.

According to testimony, the actor's earnings have diminished to a point of his owing his former wife, Juanita H. Poitier, of Stuyvesant in Columbia County, perhaps $30,000 in unpaid anticipated alimony.

Justice Edward S. Conway, hearing testimony Wednesday in a suit brought Nov. 27 by Mrs. Poitier, directed the actor, who was not present, to make a full account of his recent earnings. Conway called for further briefs before deciding on the merits of the case and payment to Mrs. Poitier.

Mrs. Poitier, who made a brief court appearance Wednesday, has said that under the terms of a financial agreement connected with their 1956 divorce, the actor was to pay her a percentage of his annual earnings before any other deductions are made from it.

Testimony indicated that Poitier — listed in court papers as the operator of the E & R Product Co., Manhattan and residing at Dorchester Towers there — had been paying $11,000 a year toward support of his former wife and their four children since divorce.

Mrs. Poitier sued for a financial accounting of Poitier's earnings, saying it was an unkept part of the agreement. She said at the time of the suit that her former husband's accountant told her that the actor did not intend to work in 1973 and that little money would be forthcoming from his earnings.

Poitier is chairman of the board of the new First Artists Production Co.

Mrs. Poitier is chairman of the board of Blue Heaven Farm, a corporation operating a drug rehabilitation center for youths 8 to 18 years old. She owns the 580-acre farm and the adjoining 76-acre estate on which she lives.

Ballet Company Sets Auditions
POUGHKEEPSIE 500 dancers, teachers, and The Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company will hold its annual auditions Jan. 7, with dancers to be selected for both the regular company and the training company.
Auditions will be conducted by Barbara Elias at 109 Cannon Street, Poughkeepsie.
Members of the ballet company are under no expense.
Weekly company class, costumes and transportation are provided by the company. In return, dedication, talent and discipline are required of the dancers.
The Company, under the artistic direction of Estelle and Alfonso, is a non-profit organization chartered by the State of New York and introduced to the public by the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.
It is a member of the Northeast Regional Ballet Association; Association of American Dance Companies; and the Dutchess County Council on the Arts.
This past summer the Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company hosted the Northeast Regional Ballet Festival in Poughkeepsie, bringing about 800 dancers from all over the United States and Canada to the area.
The Company's most recent performances include Wilcox Park under the sponsorship of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic
Orchestra; the Dutchess County
Arts Festival; and Invitational
Ballet at Poughkeepsie High School.
Auditions will begin at 1 p.m.
and will last two hours.

Area Library Annual Meeting Is Planned

KINGSTON The annual meeting of the Kingston Area Library Association will be held Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

A panel discussion will be held to review the library board's proposal that the Kingston Area Library become a school district library. The annual report and a financial report will be presented, as well as discussion of the 1973 budget. Three new members of the board of trustees will be elected at the meeting.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened slightly higher in dull trading today.

Advances held a small lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange among the handful of issues traded.

Opening prices included Merck, up 1 1/4 to 93 3/4; Howard Johnson, down 1/4 to 33 1/4; and Litton, down 1/4 to 13.

Stock market prices dipped lower Thursday as profit takers cashed in on the market's recent sharp advances.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.99 to 1039.81 following an approximately 36 point rise in the previous three sessions.

Volume on the Big Board was 20.23 million shares. On the American Stock Exchange, the price change index fell .01 to 26.63.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhoades and Co., members of New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange, Kingston Plaza, Kingston, N. Y. Joseph Garvill, resident manager. Phone 331-1900.

Falls to Death
ROVIGO, Italy (UPI) — Giovanni Formaggio, 65, fell to his death Thursday from a ladder he had climbed so he could put flowers on his wife's tomb, located in a niche in a cemetery wall.

Survives Himalayan Avalanche, Decides to Try Again

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — eight climbers at the 17,000-foot member of the advance party level of the world's sixth highest peak. Dr. Louis Reichardt dove into the snow just seconds before a Himalayan avalanche struck. Reichardt was the only Dhaulagiri I to survive the April 28, 1969, snow slide. Dr. James Morrissey and four other members of a second party, who were 1,000 feet down the mountain, also lived through the avalanche.

All six announced Thursday that they'll try again to climb the peak between India and Tibet next March.

"I decided while still on the mountain after the avalanche that I wanted to try it again," said Morrissey, 37, a Stockton, Calif., surgeon who will lead 11 Americans and an Indian on the expedition.

"We put lots of energy into trying the first time. We shouldn't abandon trying because of a quirk of nature," he said.

Lowell Smith, 36, a physicist from Palo Alto, Calif., one of six new members of the team, said he had two friends among the seven who died on Dhaulagiri I in 1969. But he insisted the climbers weren't motivated by sentiment.

"I don't feel any obligation to those who were killed," Smith said. "Their deaths were a tragedy, but there's no sense of commitment to climb the mountains because of it."

"One has to be a mountain climber to understand why one climbs." The southeast face of Dhaulagiri I, which is about 2,200 feet lower than Mt. Everest, has not been conquered in eight known attempts. But Swiss and Japanese teams climbed the peak, using the more gradual northeast approach, in 1960 and 1970 respectively.

Smith said the southeast approach, which one of the earlier teams described as "impossible," had "more technical difficulties than the two routes climbed to Everest."

But the team will make a dual approach—a main one from the southeast and a second from the northeast. Descent will be down the northeast side.

Biologists to Learn if Whale Survives

BEACH HAVEN, N.J. (UPI) — Canadian and American marine biologists expect to learn today whether a rare 12-foot-long whale, injured on a jetty, is likely to survive.

Scientists have identified the animal as a True's Beaked whale, one of a scant few ever known to be observed. The whale was moved by truck from the ocean to a private pool in a makeshift sling.

Experts decided not to attempt to give the whale any medicine or even to attempt to feed it during the critical hours after it was beached Wednesday. Instead, they smeared lanolin ointment over it to prevent possible sunburn. Dr. James Mead, a marine mammal expert from the Smithsonian Institution, said the "magic hour" to determine if the whale would survive was noon today, 48 hours after its removal from the ocean.

Deputies Probe Market Break-In

EDDYVILLE — Authorities said entry was gained through a broken front window. It was not known what, if anything, had been taken from the market, owned by Ed Calingo, according to deputies.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, January 6

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The best way to use this Saturday to advantage is to contact those you already regard as friends, or wish to have for friends, so forget all but essential tasks, and get out with people you like and enjoy the recreations pleasing to them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact those you know are loyal to you and gain their support for some plan you have in mind that can be mutually helpful. Understand your true aims, and take the right steps toward attaining them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you consult with a prominent expert, you can find out how to become more successful in your career. Be sure your credit is in good condition. Avoid one who likes to make life difficult for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are inspired now about just how to gain your fondest aspiration, so use all the inventiveness for which you are famous. Go to the right sources for any information you may need. A calmer attitude is important.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Follow your hunches, since they are most accurate now. This can be helpful in career matters and in personal ones as well. Reach a true understanding with mate in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to find out just what is expected of you by all partners, whether personal or business and try to please them. Go over contracts and make improvements thereon. Stop wasting time foolishly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have fascinating work to do for which you have little time during week, so get at that enthusiastically today. Spare time should be spent shopping. Get your wardrobe more up to date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day for going to favorite places with people who give you the greatest pleasure, but take mate along. Some slight risk can lead to something fine. Avoid one who likes to argue too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Being cooperative with kin and making the necessary repairs to home is your best avenue of expression during day. Some opportunity arises that can help you advance more quickly in your field of activity. Make good use of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fine day for driving out to see people who are difficult to contact during busy work week. Get the information you need so you can advance more quickly. Don't fall asleep at the wheel in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to improve your financial situation so you need not have to worry about essentials. Take time to improve anything you possess. Your appearance needs toning up, also.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make new friends who can fit into your scheme of things for the future. Attend group gatherings where you can meet fine individuals. State your aims to the right person and get their cooperation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consult with specialists in your field of work who can give you the advice you need just at this time so you can get ahead faster. Follow your intuition for good results. This is true also where the romantic side of life is concerned.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those dynamic young people who will want to be busy at work on something all the time, so don't try to change your youngster, or you ruin the excellent promise in this chart, the ability to find the strong and points that will lead early to profession. Permit many playmates to be around early so the art of successful human association will be learned while young. Sports are a must here. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for February is now ready. TEEN FORUM

HAIR: (Comment) It makes me sad to read in Teen Forum how many boys' parents judge them by the length of their hair. I have shoulder-length hair and my parents, whom I love very much, realize it has very little to do with the type of person I am.

Some people, though, seem to think it has a great deal to do with my personality, social standing, frequency of bathing, etc.

I hate the war, despise all types of discrimination, and believe in the inalienable rights of man. I want to help clean up our land, fight evil and injustice, and see a day when everyone in the world can stand hand in hand. If long hair caused me to feel this way, may God help me grow it longer!"—Alive in Pennsylvania.

(A.) I'm with you! And I believe that across America more and more parents, teachers, employers and people in general are getting to be more and more reasonable about hair length.

I also believe—and I have said it here many times—that long hair on either boys or girls should be kept clean and neat.

COSTLY LIE: (Q) Two years ago I told the guy I love a lie. Since then we have not gone together, because he does not trust me. But we see each other and talk a little now and then.

I realize the lie I told was the worst mistake I could make. I would do anything to show him that he can trust me now. Some of the things he says tell me he has deep feeling for me still. Just the same, he has another girl friend and dates her regularly.

She thinks I am trying to make trouble. I do not want to make trouble for her, but his happiness is my deepest concern, and right now I think he is not as happy with her as he could be with me.

What can I do to gain his trust? How can I show the girl I have no hard feelings for her and actually would like to help?—Desperate in Texas.

(A.) You sound very sincere, and you may win. Keep telling your friend that you will never lie to him again. Keep being honest and truthful in every other part of your life.

This includes not telling lies to yourself—not fooling yourself. If he really cares more for you than he does for the other girl, he should give you a chance.

But do not expect her not to be hurt if you win. You can be honest with her, decent, friendly, too. But she still will be hurt.

That will be a part of the fruit of the lie you told so long ago.

PBS... Important Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service Board is meeting today in the first round of an off-camera debate over who will have the major say in what programs will be on public television.

Round two occurs Jan. 10 when the parent Corporation for Public Broadcasting holds its board meeting to decide what role, if any, PBS should have in future program decisions.

What both sides will consider and vote on are policy statements on exactly who should make most of those decisions — the corporation or the PBS and managers of public television stations.

The corporation, founded by Congress to administer the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, will have the final word. Henry Loomis, its new president, says the board wants to "define" the role of PBS.

But he insists this is only because of sloppy business arrangements between PBS and the CPB and not because the board is angered at the often-controversial affairs shows approved in past years by PBS.

He says both agencies have confused, overlapping functions in such areas as legal counsel, public relations and program review and "at the moment nobody knows who's responsible for what."

And, he says, "that's the real problem. We've had some Government Accounting Office auditors here and they are totally agast at the sloppy business practice that has existed between us and PBS. And I don't blame them."

"Because we've given PBS nine million bucks a year on the strength of a very flimsy three-page letter. And I wouldn't give nine bucks to my son with as little guidance."

But Hartford Gunn Jr., PBS president, says "it seems to me the problem is whether the corporation's 15 presidential appointees are going to make program decisions."

This, he says, would take the responsibility away from the 145 managements of some 226 public television stations in the U.S. who have played an active role with PBS in program decisions.

He said his agency was created in 1969 by CPB and the stations to serve as an independent distributor of programs and as the "interconnection" for a growing list of public TV stations.

Until this year, it made most of the program decisions in the form of recommendations that generally were approved by the CPB. The corporation served mainly as an administrative unit, passing yearly congressional appropriations on to PBS and the stations.

Gunn fears that if the CPB elects to actively make program decisions, "It's not just taking the decisions away from the stations."

He says the Broadcasting Act seems too vague on who should make these decisions and should be amended to make certain the stations "are the responsible agents for how the majority of programs are selected and how all program are distributed."

Loomis said he won't know until after Jan. 10 whether the board wants to completely strip PBS of decision-making responsibility in programming. "There's a whole spectrum of possibilities," he said.

Dignitaries Memorialize Harry S Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ranking government and foreign dignitaries, who weren't invited to the simple, private funeral last week for Harry S. Truman, gathered at Washington Cathedral today to memorialize the 33rd president of the United States.

The 88-year-old Truman died Dec. 26 and was buried in the grassy courtyard of the library in Independence, Mo., that houses the documents and mementos of his life. The former president had requested that only family and close friends attend the funeral service at the library.

Plans were made to hold a simultaneous memorial service in the nation's capital for the many government officials and representatives of foreign countries who wished to pay their last respects. But when Truman died during the holiday season after a long illness it was decided to postpone the service here until various officials returned to Washington after spending the holiday with their families.

Officiating at the interfaith service were the Rev. John E. Howell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Washington, which Truman attended as President; the Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., dean of the Washington Cathedral; and the Right Rev. William F. Creighton, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Washington.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew represented President Nixon, who flew to Independence to pay his respects before the funeral. Cathedral spokesmen said the nine justices of the Supreme Court, leaders of the House and Senate and numerous foreign dignitaries also attended. About 200 of the 2,000 seats in the tall, gothic cathedral were to be open to the public, and a lawn on the cathedral grounds was roped off to accommodate any overflow crowd.

Prime Minister John Lynch of Ireland, President Zalman Shazar of Israel, Premier Kim Chong Pil of South Korea and

Vice President Yen Chia-kan of Taiwan were among the ranking foreign officials scheduled to represent their governments at the service. Truman's only child, Margaret Truman Daniel, and her husband, Clifton Daniel of The New York Times, represented the family. Mrs. Truman, the former president's beloved

Bess, is 87, in frail health and was not expected to travel to Washington for the ceremony, like those of several other national figures—was conducted former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, accompanied the church on Mount S. Alban in Daniels. Eisenhower's funeral—northwest Washington.

Diverted Jet Searched...No Bomb Found

ELLSWORTH AIR FORCE BASE, S.D. (AP) — Air Force specialists have found no trace of a bomb aboard a Trans World Airlines jumbo jet forced to land here by a threat of an altitude bomb. A TWA spokesman said the Boeing 747 would be searched again today.

The 233 persons aboard the Madrid-to-New York flight Thursday were reported calm during the flight here.

The airliner was diverted to this western South Dakota air base after an anonymous phone caller in Spain said a bomb would explode if the plane descended to a level of about 3,100 feet. The altitude here is 3,200 feet.

The caller said he would tell where the bomb was located if the airline paid him 15 million pesetas ($232,500).

Crew Capt. Melvin Manning, 58, of Hopatcong, N.J., said he learned of the bomb threat about one hour out of Madrid.

Manning said the plane was routed to mile-high Denver but excessive head winds cut its fuel supply and the plane was diverted to Ellsworth.

Willis Baker, a passenger from Los Alamitos, Calif., said "just past Newfoundland the captain told us a man with a Spanish accent had phoned Madrid authorities to say a bomb was aboard which would detonate at a certain altitude. I guess there was some anxiety among those of us in the passenger area, but never anything approaching panic."

The passengers ate at the base's officers' club and telephoned relatives. After a delay of about six hours they were flown in two planes to New York and Chicago to clear customs.

The threat, and the airline handling of it, was the latest in a series of incidents matching the plot of a movie "Doomsday Flight." In the 1966 film a man demanded $100,000 to reveal where he had planted an altitude pressure-sensitive bomb aboard an airliner. The movie plane landed at Denver, above the altitude where the extortionist had said the bomb would explode.

Anti-Hijacking Program... First Phase Now in Effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first phase of the government's strict new anti-hijacking program goes into effect today amid appeals to passengers "to keep your good humor" and a dispute over how the first hijacker of 1973 managed to board an airliner with a gun.

Under emergency procedures issued last month by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, 531 airports around the nation must screen all passengers boarding an airliner, and inspect all carry-on luggage, including handbags carried by women.

By Feb. 5, armed guards must be stationed at each airport boarding gate, and passengers will be physically searched if necessary.

The Air Transport Association (ATA), a trade organization representing the nation's major airlines, urged air travelers to speed up the boarding procedure by:

—Keeping carry-on luggage to a minimum.

—Arriving at the airport early to allow time for the metal detection test.

—Unzipping luggage "as you near the inspector."

The ATA also urged passengers "to keep your good humor—remembering that the inspectors are doing their duty and doing it for your protection."

The security program is a massive undertaking. The nation's airlines make an average of 15,000 flights a day and carry some 500,000 passengers in a fleet of 2,200 jetliners. To carry out the program, the government and the airlines have put in place more than 2,000 electronic screening devices, and the guard force is expected to number around 3,000.

But the cost of the program will be borne by the air traveler, not the government or the airlines.

Death Penalty... Two Viewpoints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says it will call for a mandatory death penalty for "cold-blooded, premeditated" crimes, but a Democratic Senator is proposing a bill that would leave imposition of the death sentence up to the jury.

The two opposing viewpoints could presage a major congressional battle over use of capital punishment. And opponents of the death penalty already have begun to form battle lines.

Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst announced Thursday that the administration will seek legislation requiring the death penalty for such crimes as kidnapping, assassination, bombing a public building, killing a prison guard and air hijacking.

Meanwhile, Sen. John L. McClellan D-Ark., introduced a bill that would reinstate the death penalty, but only if a defendant, in the course of a serious crime, intentionally takes another person's life. The jury would decide guilt and punishment separately.

Kleindienst suggested at a news conference that a mandatory death penalty, where the jury in effect decides guilt and imposes punishment at the same time, would be acceptable to the Supreme Court. The court ruled 5 to 4 last summer that because the death penalty has been applied unevenly in state and federal courts, it violates the constitutional ban against cruel and unusual punishment.

Included on the Senate subcommittee on criminal laws and procedures, which would handle such a bill, are two ardent Democratic opponents of capital punishment, Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Philip A. Hart of Michigan.

More opposition apparently would come from Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a member of the parent Judiciary Committee.
